Appearances to The Contrary.

By CECILIA A. LOIZEAUX.

Copyrighted, 1907, by E. C. Parcells.

Mrs. Holton entered her sister Susan's room and, sinking into the nearest chair, undid her collar. This was preparatory to the rite, sacred in Milltown, of dressing for the afternoon. Susan, who, notwithstanding the fact that she had just returned from an art school and did not deny being artistic, refused to be called Suzanne, was doing something to her face, with the aid of a hand glass and many unbecoming grimaces.

"What are you going to wear this afternoon?" inquired Mrs. Holton in an elaborately careless voice.

"Nothing—that is, I'm going to wash my hair, since there is not a place in this metropolis where I can have it washed for me."

"But, Susie, not in the afternoon! There will surely be callers."

"Just say I'm not at home and don't bother," said Susan, drawing out her hairpins and letting her red hair down over her yellow and brown and tan kimono.

"You forget that you are not in New York," said her sister sharply. "Do try to forget that you have been to art school and be decent to people. 'Not at home' won't go here. Every one in this village knows that you are at home, for you couldn't possibly get away without some one seeing you go. And, anyway, I asked that Mr. Bates over to call on you."

"Kind of you! What Mr. Bates?" asked Susan, dropping her comb and stooping to pick it up.

"Mrs. Barton's nephew. He's from the east somewhere, and he has the nicest manners. I thought maybe you would like to have some one come who is a little more like the men you are used to," she added.

"I would," said Susan emphatically. "And it was nice of you to think of it. Perhaps he'll come late in the afternoon and my hair will be all dry. I'll hurry!" And she ran down the hall and slammed the bathroom door after her.

"There's something familiar about the name," she said to her face in the glass while the water was running. "And—and I don't particularly want to see any more of the Bates clan—but if Bessie should find that out she'd never let me forget it. So I'll see her Mr. Bates and try to get interested in this place."

She played croquet with her little niece while her hair dried, and the latter half of the game brought her into full view of the street. She got down on her knees and bumped the gaudy ball with care and precision against the little post, and while she knelt a young man walked up the straight walk to the front door.

And so it happened that three minutes later as she entered the sitting room, with her glowing, wind blown hair and flushed face, she was just in time to hear her sister's "company voice" say:

"Come right out into the sitting room, Mr. Bates. It's so much cooler there."

She gained the stair closet just in time and softly pulled the door shut after her. And then, safely hidden, she called herself a goose.

"Why didn't you go back out into the yard and reach your room by the ladder? No one but Bessie would live in a house that has no back stairs."

She hoped the caller would not stay long, but she knew there was no telling what false hopes her sister would hold out to the young man to keep him until Susan should appear. She did not know that Susan was in the closet, and if she had known it she would not have known how to get her out of it.

"But if she had one grain of sense, which unfortunately she has not, or she'd not be trying to make a match for me, she'd know that I, presumably in the back yard, could not get to my room in any way save through the place where they are sitting."

The closet was small, airless, dusty and full of odds and ends. Susan hardly dared move for fear of knocking something down.

"Not that I care for being discovered," she reasoned, "for that would serve them both right, but I do not care to bring Jim's golf sticks or Indian clubs down on my defenseless head. I'm not much of a club woman." She searched cautiously for a keyhole and found none.

"Of course not," she muttered disgustedly. "I am denied even the small comfort of watching the dismay on Bessie's face as I fall to appear. So I must think upon my sins and be patient, I presume."

She sank back on her heels and mopped her hot face with one corner of her kimono. "I hope it doesn't fade," she thought.

Presently she rested her forehead on her knees and forgot time and place and heat and discomfort. Her thoughts were busy.

we knew she had got the prize. She looked at me, and then she walked straight up to Dan, and they forgot I was there. Oh, the humiliation of it! And then she left her to cap the climax by telling me that I never would make an artist. I knew it well enough. All I wanted was— If he'd only stopped there instead of telling me that I should be married.

"I have seen that you are in love, Miss Susan, and I advise you to marry the good man and help him make a career."

"He wasn't so smart as he thought he was or he'd have seen that Maude wasn't content with getting the painting prize. She had to take everything, even—"

Forgetting where she was, she sprang to her feet, bumping her head against a pile of empty boxes, which fell with a deafening clatter.

Then the door was flung open, and some one seized her arm and drew her gently out into the sitting room. Susan gave one glance at her sister's horrified face and then laughed helplessly. It was fortunate that she could not see her own face, which was stained in an elaborate pattern from the kimono.

"I was hunting for my comb"—she began and stopped, for the man, whose face she had not yet seen, came around in front of her.

"Did you find it?" he asked.

Susan turned white and then red and white again before she said a word. And when her lips finally opened they uttered the one thing she could have blurted her tongue out for saying.

"Where is Maude?"

"Maude? Oh, she's safely married and on a wedding trip. Whatever made you run away that day when old Carlton told Maude she had won the prize? We hunted for you to tell you, but you were gone."

"I didn't need to be told. I saw," she said, and then grew white again. "But why—if you are married—why isn't Maude here too?"

"Maude?" Suddenly the man gave a shout. "Do you mean that you think I am married to Maude? That's a good one. She is my sister-in-law now. She was engaged to Fred for five years, and they never had money enough to marry on till she got that cash prize. That was why she worked so hard to get it."

Susan began to back toward the stairway. She felt it was time to escape.

"No, you don't," said the man, and he caught one corner of the kimono and held her.

"I'm not dressed," she murmured.

"So I perceive," he answered. "But was that the reason you ran away—because you thought Maude?"

"Old Carlton told me I'd never make an artist," she evaded.

"Did he? The brute! But that was no reason for running away from me. What else did he say?"

"He said I had better get married," said Susan. "And that was why I ran away."

As she had hoped he would, the man dropped the kimono in his amazement, and she darted up the stairs, leaving him looking after her with fear in his eyes.

"Susan—tell me!"

She leaned over the banisters and smiled at him. "But of course I can't get married until some one asks me," she said, and before he could get to her the door of her room had slammed.

Circus Folk Hard Workers.

The amount of physical work done by the performers of the circus is scarcely believable. These people make the care of their bodies their religion, and they will do nothing that militates against their strength or their health. When the performers rise in the morning they hurry to the cook tent for breakfast. Then they must get into their trappings for the parade, failure to report at 10:30 involving a fine of $5. If the big tent is up early the chances are that the arena will be filled with performers practicing for an hour before the parade. After the street display the performers have their dinner, and then they must dress for the grand entrance, from which none is excused. Only a very few of the circus folk escape with a single act. Nearly all of them do two and most of them three acts, for each of which they must change their costume. A woman performer often works in a gymnastic act on the ground, another in the air, rides in a menage act or two and in the flat races at the end of the performance. In addition she will very probably "do a turn" in a concert after the show, and she must change her costume for each appearance—Everybody's Magazine.

A Trick That Won.

"Once, when 'Long John' Wentworth was mayor of Chicago," said an old time resident of that city, "a hot campaign was in progress. The rough element was showing signs of turbulence, and 'Long John' knew that the police force was totally unable to cope with it if there should be a riot. There wasn't much of any police force in those days. The few officers that there were didn't have any uniform outside of a plug hat. On the front of this was a semicircle of tin with the man's number on it. There was no money to pay for additional officers, so 'Long John' betwined himself of a bright scheme. He had a figure '4' added to the number on every one of those hats. On election day the different members of the force were stationed conspicuously where the trouble was most likely to break out. The roughs saw the numbers, '250', '290', '350', etc., where they had before seen only '25', '29' and '35'. The word went around that 'Long John' had added several hundred men to the police force, and the rough crowd was so intimidated that they never dared to do a thing."

ABOARD A MAN-OF-WAR.

Life Largely Made Up of Scrubbings, Regulations and Inspections.

The day's programme aboard a man-of-war is calculated to make the boy who wants to run away to sea sit up and think twice. It varies somewhat according as the ship is in port or at sea and under different commands, but in any case, from 5 o'clock in the morning till 7:30 at night, it is a rather strenuous round of scrubbings and drills. The recruit realizes very soon that the expression "shipshape" means a good deal.

Saturday morning is a tremendous cleaning time, called "field day," which is followed by a half holiday in the afternoon, and on Sunday morning the captain himself inspects his ship from keel to truck. The marine band is stationed just below on the hurricane deck, and the bluejackets stand on the port side of the quarter deck and the marines on the starboard, all ready for inspection.

But life isn't all scrubbings, regulations and inspections. On the larger ships the government furnishes athletic supplies, and each man-of-war has its champion boxer and baseball and football teams. These teams are managed or supervised, at least, by officers, and many an ensign or lieutenant who has won his "N" at the Naval academy plays shoulder to shoulder with his bluejackets. Such familiarity would have scandalized old Commodore Porter beyond words.—St. Nicholas.

A PARASITE CREEPER.

New Zealand's Vegetable Caterpillar is a Most Peculiar Plant.

The most extraordinary object I have ever seen is the New Zealand vegetable caterpillar. The rata is a parasite creeper which first destroys its forest host and then crushes it to death and, usurping its skeleton, becomes a tree itself. If the rata seedling is dug up it is found to be springing not from a seed, but from the head of a perfectly formed caterpillar.

It is supposed by some that the caterpillar, which on dissection proves to be internally the exact counterpart of its living insect relative, swallows the tiny rata seed while living and, burrowing into the ground, becomes, instead of a chrysalis, the germinating home of the seed, which by some agency turns its unfortunate foster mother into wood.

Others, however, contend the caterpillar itself is produced by the rata, urging in support of their theory that if springing from a seed the shoot would grow out of different parts of the caterpillar instead of invariably growing out of the head.

The insect, vegetable is yellowish, about four inches long and is fully extended. I have seen them freshly dug up and others that have been kept for years, and all had the appearance of a perfect insect carved in wood.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Elevator Eyes.

One of the greatest hardships suffered by men who run elevators in the tall office buildings downtown is the bad effect it has on their eyes. The cars are run at a high rate of speed, and, as the men have to look straight ahead of them most of the time, their eyes soon feel the strain of the constant motion.

"I've worked in the subway," remarked one of these elevator men, "and I thought that was pretty bad, but it isn't a patch to the way my eyes feel after a day's work in these cars. If you ever run across an elevator man who seems unusually bad tempered toward the close of the business day, just look at his eyes and you will be apt to forgive him. They generally show the strain that has been put on them for eight or ten hours."—New York Press.

As Exemplified.

A learned professor was dining with the Diltses and the table was set with the best ware that Mrs. Dilts's china closet afforded. The guest was particularly interested in the display and admired it greatly. Picking up the plate in front of him and noting the design of the manufacturer on the bottom of it, he remarked:

"I presume you know that china, or the art of making it, was discovered by accident?"

Just then there was heard in the kitchen, where the maid was busily at work, a loud crash.

"Yes," answered Mrs. Dilts, with a pained smile, "and most of it is broken in the same way."—Youth's Companion.

Wigs and Fans.

"There is one thing I want to warn you about," said the wigmaker to the man who was buying his first wig, "and that is the electric fan. Whenever you see an electric fan in motion give it a wide berth. If you don't it is apt to enmesh your wig. Electric fans and wigs are deadly enemies. Nothing outside of an Indian and a tomahawk will lift a wig from the wearer's head quicker than an electric fan in motion."—New York Sun.

A Fairy Tale.

Dear little Maude awoke about 2 o'clock the other morning and asked mamma to tell her a fairy tale.

"It's too late, darling," mamma replied. "Daddy will be in shortly, and he'll tell us both one."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

USED BIBLE AS CIPHER.

A Verse From Solomon Told of a Marriage Engagement.

When she left her home in the small town to come to New York to take up a special course of study her pet sister was fast reaching the crisis of a love affair. The pet sister was a most winsome young lady and had long kept a goodly train of suitors a-sighing. Was this affair to be the grand affair? The older sister hoped so, for she liked the young man cordially—thought he was just the sort to make a proper brother-in-law.

But the weeks passed, and not a bit of definite news about the progress of the affair did the older sister receive in her city boarding house. She became anxious, Louise, she thought, must not go on recklessly trifling in such important matters.

Then one night about 10 o'clock, just as she was going to bed, came a telegram. The servant brought it up. The elder sister was country girl enough to be thoroughly frightened by the pale manila, black inked envelope. How ominous it looked! At length she gathered courage to open it. This is what she read:

Solomon six three. LOUISE. Solomon six three! Whatever in the world! Oh, why, yes, stupid, it of course meant the Song of Solomon, sixth chapter, third verse! But—and her cheeks flushed with shame—she had no Bible!

There was a great scurrying about the boarding house to find a copy of the sacred book. The girls were routed out in vain. On all sides the cry arose, "Who's got a Bible?" Just this of the sister trying to sleep that night without knowing what that verse was! It would have been just like a woman to lie down to pleasant dreams, content to know that she could satisfy her curiosity in the morning—not!

The landlady, a good soul, came to the rescue. She was no heathen. She had a Bible. It is her room with it flew the sister and shut the door. Such a turning over of pages by eager, nervous fingers! Solomon—six three. She found it, and then she cried "Hurrah!" and laughed, for the verse was:

I am my beloved's, and my beloved is mine.

—New York Press.

All He Could Think Of.

While driving along a country road a man saw the roof of a farmer's house ablaze. He gesticulated and called to the farmer's wife, who was calmly standing in the doorway:

"Hey, your house is afire!"

"What?" she bawled out.

"I say, your house is afire!"

"What did y' say? I'm a little deaf!"

"Your house is afire!" again yelled the man at the top of his lungs.

"Oh, is that all?" calmly replied the woman.

"It's all I can think of just now," responded the man in a rather weak voice as he drove on.—Exchange.

Toad as Assistant Gardener.

By actual inspection of a big, fat toad's stomach it was found to contain not less than fifty large grapevine worms, fifty-five potato bugs, sixty sowbugs, forty angleworms and thirty cabbage worms, with by way of seasoning, numerous flies and mosquitoes. Now multiply this, and I think you will appreciate the value of an army of toads on your premises, or any number required, according to the services that may reasonably be expected from one toad.—Suburban Life.

The Woman in Business.

She handed in a check payable to Susan H. Smith. The cashier, who was a German, noticed that she had indorsed it Susan Smith and gave it back with a polite "You haf forgotten the 'H'." Overcome with confusion, she murmured, "Excuse me," and wrote below the indorsement, "Age twenty-three."—Lippincott's.

A Square Deal

Is assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and their formulas are attested under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests and while potent to cure are perfectly harmless even to the most delicate woman and child. Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition. A much better agent is used both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles used in them, viz., pure vegetable glycerine. This agent possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable antiseptic and antiferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heart-burn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels. Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if it is used perseveringly. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal Passages, it is well, with its taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption in its advanced stages, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, long-continued coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Dis" cures is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate, chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

The Trend of the Labor Movement.

THE WHEELS of industry ceased to hum on Monday when labor went on parade and celebrated the victory of its organization into the hundreds of unions which are now a part of our industrial system in America. It has been a great spectacle now for many years, emphasizing the quantity and power in the labor ranks, impressing on the commercial world in general what strides the workingmen have made toward advancement and better conditions through the mobilization of their forces and the realization of the truism "in union there is strength." All fair minded men and economists admit that a broad, high-minded type of workingmen is a country's most valuable asset and that slave labor and sweat shops degenerate and prostrate a nation. Formulated appeals and demands for the bettering of conditions is recognized and approved and men joined unions for this purpose and those outside of the ranks respected the movement until it came to be widespread and popular. So labor unionism has grown, but instead of being actuated by the original purpose and being dominated by a brotherly spirit there has crept in a narrow conception of the term brotherly. The Christian conception was lost in the enthusiasm for the fraternal brotherhood and then came a breach between labor and capital by which capital came to be held as the avowed enemy of labor and something to be harassed and fought in pitched battle if necessary. This feeling was engendered by men at heart revolutionists, un-American trouble makers, who harped on the dark side of the task of labor and those in the ranks came to believe that rats were pitfalls into which they were being driven by merciless capital. The men like Samuel Gompers, who originally formed the organization, had legislation and arbitration in mind as the means of bettering the conditions of our workingmen, but when once the organization was effected, wolves in sheep's clothing, sought to use the unions as a weapon, and they howl with glee whenever they can incite strikes and riots. This feeling is as old as the hills and has precipitated many a country into bloody revolution.

But the American workingman as a unit, taking the majority the country over, is not like the small horizoned peasant of Europe nor the serfs of other countries, he is an intelligent personality and will shortly come to see that he is being misled. Already there is disruption in the ranks. The men realize that crude extremes can never win out and that they cannot enforce an unnatural betterment into any brand of labor. Arbitration will be acknowledged as the only sane means of conducting the interests of capital and labor which are mutually dependent one upon the other.

In a pitched battle the methods of capital will win for it victories every time for the onlooker will not be bulled into sympathizing with unions. There is the same feeling as would be engendered should capital shut down and decide to starve its dependents into submission. Such tactics would meet with just such disapprobation as do the extreme measures employed by labor to-day when it seeks to force men and women to boycott street cars through persuasion by brick-bats and dynamite.

It is a goodly sight to see thousands of prosperous, intelligent workingmen in line on labor day for it means just that many happy, healthy homes wherein the citizens of tomorrow are being brought up and educated but they must work out their problem along different lines that their rights may be respected and the way opened for a brighter future for future working generations. If capital acts unjustly it will have no sympathizers if union labor meets it in fair battle, but the battle must be fair.

CONGRESSMAN MCKINLEY's personal knowledge of the immigration problem as affecting California and her labor conditions made his labor day speech at Santa Rosa of particular force and interest. McKinley is and will be a valuable factor in adjusting our affairs with Japan.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—indigestion. It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop to the discovery of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. With out that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had. For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend.

CITY COUNCIL
HOLD MEETING.Routine Business Transacted Wednesday Night
by the City Fathers.

The City Trustees held forth in regular September session Wednesday night at the old stand in the shadow of the new municipal structure which is fast looming up nowdays and will soon be the scene of all civic legislation and an inspiration to brilliant oratory.

The old city pavilion was graced on this occasion by all the trustees except Trustee John Wagon who failed to come up from San Francisco for the session.

The Board concluded its duties of equalization and adjourned, having increased the assessment values of the below mentioned property owners: M. Clewe, Sonoma Valley Bank, L. and O. Rufus, P. Yenni, G. S. Harris, McCartney, W. McElroy, A. Adler, M. Martinoni, F. Duhring, E. Etaldi, E. Gilbert, Warriner, Northwestern Railway, S. B. Lewis.

The minutes were then read of regular and special meetings including that of August 7th, August 24th and August 30th, the latter having been the date for the issuing of saloon licenses.

The following bills were then read and ordered paid:

Clerk, curbing	$ 7 50
Index-Tribune, printing	42 35
L. Empanan, water	15 00
A. M. Haraszhly, labor	2 25
J. H. Albertson, salary	15 00
S. V. Co. light	30 40
A. Pinelli, sprinkling	75 00
Wm. Green, janitor	18 00
W. O. Hooker, saloon blanks	2 50
H. Pooler, labor	3 00
Joe Ryan, services	2 00
Jos. B. Small, salary	25 00

R. A. Poppe also filed an additional claim of $5 45 for expenses in connection with the suit of the City vs. the Steiger Terra Cotta Company.

The City Hall Committee reported progress.

The report of J. H. Albertson showed that he had collected $1,140 from nineteen saloons for six month licenses.

The matter of accepting Hooker street, in the Loustalet subdivision, was taken under advisement, it being understood that the street would be done by the property owner before its acceptance by the city.

Trustee Breitenbach said that he understood that the owner of the new Chase tract was to bridge, grade and gravel the new street in that subdivision besides laying cement walks before turning it over to the town.

The Trustees have made it a precedent not to accept new thoroughfares through new tracts unless work was done by the interested parties.

The meeting then adjourned.

Worked Their Game in Santa Rosa.

Two peddlers who victimized several well known residents of this valley by selling cotton goods for pure linen have been "bawled" out by the Santa Rosa Republican whom they also worked successfully last Monday. The fellows are foreigners who claim to have escaped paying duty on the goods and they offer them at tempting prices always showing a sample of real linen and claiming that the goods in the bolts are identical.

A well meaning Sonoma housewife, who recently was foolish enough to buy the material, thought she had a bargain bolt and started to sell it off to her friends. They disapproved her.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of deafness caused by Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Sudden Attack of Dysentery Cured.

A prominent lady of Brooklyn, N. Y., writes to inquire where she can obtain Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. She says: "While stopping at a ranch in South Dakota I was taken ill of what seemed to be cholera. They gave me some of this medicine and it cured me. I brought a bottle home and have just used the last of it today. Mother was taken suddenly ill of dysentery and it helped her immediately."

To Renew a Judgment.

SPECIAL SCHOOL
TAX OF $15,000.Supervisors Have Been Petitioned to Include That Sum for High School in Tax Levy.

A petition was filed with the Board of Supervisors last Tuesday asking that when they make the tax levy to include a $15,000 special school tax for the Sonoma Valley Union High School district and also $300 for the Glen Ellen district school.

Some time since the proposition to issue bonds for the erection of a new High School, building to take the place of the one put out of commission by the earthquake of April, 1906, was defeated and the High School Board have now no other recourse to pay for the new school building in course of construction except by direct taxation hence the appeal to the Supervisors for the $15,000 special school tax. Had the bonds carried the tax would hardly have been noticed when the taxes became due and payable. As it is, there will be some vigorous kicking over a tax that must be met directly and which should have been shared by a future generation.

Would Secure Regular Librarian.

The Sonoma Valley Woman's Club is making a commendable effort to secure a regular librarian for the library which they established for the benefit of the reading public several years ago. Ever since its foundation the library has been supported and cared for by the club ladies. Volunteers have kept the library open and assumed the duties of librarian every night while the rent has been paid for through subscription raised by these public spirited women. The library now is growing, however, and the duties such that a regular librarian is most essential. The reading public should interest itself in helping the movement along, and as many of the patrons are men it seems that the formation of a library association with members as well as the interested club ladies would be an excellent thing for the town and valley.

Loustalet's Subdivision.

County Surveyor George Wink has completed the map for P. Loustalet's subdivision for Sonoma, facing on the south side of Napa street and running from the City Hotel on the east to Maffei's property on the west. The subdivision makes twenty-six lots, some of which front on Napa street and the balance on an avenue which has been named after "Fighting Joe Hooker" of Lookout Mountain fame, who owned the property long before the civil war in which he was a prominent factor.

Explosion Shook Up Sonoma

The explosion of the gelatine packing house of the California Powder Works at Hercules on Thursday afternoon last, although over thirty-five miles distant in an air line, shook things up pretty lively here, causing many people, who experienced the earthquake of 1906 to take notice and rush out of doors in terror of a repetition of that temblor. The explosion blew four employees of the works into atoms.

VALIDITY OF NEW
SALOON ORDINANCEAttacked and City Sued For Return of License Money
Paid Under Protest.

Attorney Thomas J. Butts, of Santa Rosa, has been retained by the hotel and saloon men of Sonoma, to combat the legality of the saloon ordinance recently passed by the City Trustees.

The ordinance in question raises saloon licenses from $5 to $10 per month, payable semi-annually in advance, and imposes other conditions on the saloon men which are not to their liking and which they claim to be unfair and burdensome.

Tax Collector Albertson made the rounds of the town last Tuesday and under the new ordinance collected from nineteen hotels and saloons $1,140, one half of which, or $570, was paid over to him under protest.

It is understood suit will be brought by attorney Butts for restitution of the latter amount, which represents the one-half of the amount paid to the tax collector by the nineteen protesting license payers.

Editor Granice returned from the Mt. Grant mining district, Esmeralda county, Nevada, last Saturday, after an absence of three weeks, and is at his editorial desk again. The mines recently purchased by Dr. Thomson, Dr. Sprague and himself are causing quite a stir in the sage brush State, particularly the four placer claims, which give promise of great richness. Little work will be done this fall but Dr. Sprague, who is on the ground, is making ready for working the placers on a big scale early next spring. For the most part mining is a gamble, but the Mt. Grant proposition looks to us like a dead cinch.

Former Sonomaite Given Farewell.

The following account of a farewell party given in honor of Samuel Merk, formerly of this place, appeared in the last issue of the Paso "Robles Record."

The farewell stag party which was given Wednesday evening in honor of S. D. Merk, former editor and proprietor of the "Record," was one of those events which are good for men to participate in. It gives an inner knowledge of the appreciation held for sterling worth, for good citizenship and for a quiet, unobtrusive following of the line of duty as it lays through this work-a-day world.

The affair was given by T. W. Henry at his residence and a dozen of those who pride themselves on being Mr. Merk's closest friends were present to say their farewell to a man who for eleven years has labored as a country newspaper editor in Paso Robles and successfully mastered all the problems which are a part of such an occupation.

Stories and carols occupied the earlier part of the evening and then all sat down to a bohemian lunch which was rounded out with the heartfelt compliments paid by all to the guest of honor and with the healths drunk to his success in his new field in San Mateo county whither he was to start the next afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Pope, who have been conducting Boyes' Springs, will shortly leave and Mr. and Mrs. Paramore will assume charge.

Mrs. Millie Bates went to San Francisco Wednesday, whither she had been called by the illness of her daughter, Mrs. Theo. Numan.

The stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Olsen of Schellville last Thursday and a bright baby boy added to the family.
